

SUMMARY OF CAPITAL OUTLAY

CY 2010

PEACE

During the Spanish era, the La Union governor held office and resided at the same seat located in the cobarrera in San Fernando. It was established in August 13, 1871. The same seat stood until the American regime. At some point in the Japanese occupation, the structure was completely bombed.

The provincial capital started during the administration of Gen. Mariano Landa. The Capitol, which used to be located at the San Fernando City Hall, was built on a 97,864 square meters with the aid of the people of the United Philippines Rehabilitation Act of 1946. On the other hand, the construction of the capital of the Province of La Union. A year after, the structure was completed.

On the first day he assumed office as chief of La Union in 1977, the welfare of the province and its future has been the prime concern of Gen. Tomas M. Aragon. Since it was his struggle to surround himself with beauty, with nature's greenery and foliage and cool surroundings, he spent a fortune providing for a main park across the doorstep of the provincial capital, its surrounding terraces and also its interiors. The capital edifice were repaired and improved. The entire roofing of the capital was constructed in 1980. This added feature not only made the capital building more beautiful and impressive but also serves as a protection from the scorching heat of the noon day sun and the rains.

Existing as the seat of the provincial government, the flagpole where the Philippine flag goes up every morning was installed in front of the Capitol where all employees of the provincial government are required to join the flag raising ceremony every First Monday of the Month.
